XM Radio is greatest technological breakthrough since the CD. I have approximately 700 CDs in my home... all of which I rarely listen to anymore because of the great commercial-free music I am exposed to via XM Radio. As a resident of the New York Metro area, I was thrilled when XM Radio began offering local traffic and weather, especially since my wife drives to work. Having the XM Radio service allows her the opportunity to tune in at her convenience and get up-to-the minute information instead of having to tune in at one specific time on TV or the radio. And since we're paying for the subscription, I see no reason why this service should be limited, altered or terminated.
